Gloria Katuuku '03 uses her education from La Roche University to implement social economic development in her home country of Uganda.

Ms. Katuuku is the Principal Information and Communications Technology (ICT) Officer of Research and Development for the Ministry of Information and Communications Technology, Uganda. She is responsible for developing policies, strategies and regulations that govern the ICT sector of Uganda. Additionally she collaborates with research institutions to promote innovations.

Previously she was the breadth account manager for Microsoft Eastern and Southern Africa. She then served the Ministry of Information and Communications Technology as a senior systems analyst before the promotion to her current role.

Ms. Katuuku is a member of Rotary International in Uganda. She has served as president for the Rotary Club of Bukoto and board member for the Uganda Institute of Information Communication Technology. Additionally she was a member of ISAAC Uganda Chapter and a mentor at Girls4Girls. She is the co-founder and a member of Mbeguzamapinzi, an association of children of fallen soldiers.

“Bringing a smile to someone’s face, and making a difference in someone’s life, is priceless. I aspire to inspire others,” she said.

Ms. Katuuku is an alumna of La Roche’s Pacem In Terris Institute. Established in 1993, Pacem In Terris bring students from war-torn and developing nations to study at La Roche.

“I had just lost my parent, and my education had come to a standstill. I was blessed to be one of the Pacem In Terris program’s beneficiaries,” she said.
